

XM Radio is great. Now the drivers, both large and small, can listen to a channel for the duration of the trip and not spend time "looking" for a radio station that is playing the music or what ever that they want to hear. No more taking the hands off the steering wheel and weaving over the roadways. As for the traffic and weather channels. They are the greatest. I drive an 18 wheeler, I go into some of the biggest cities and if that city is cover by these channels, then I listen to the various situtations that I might be heading into, and I get that info now, not every 15 mins on the half hour. I hope that the FCC puts down or throws out the NAB petition 04-160.
